DETAILED ACTION

1. The Declaration filed on 06/02/2005 under 37 CFR 1.131 is sufficient to overcome the "Miramontes" reference.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-9, 11-24, 26-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kwon (US 2004/0203513 A1).

Kwon teaches a handheld electronic communication device 1, Figs. 2-12, comprising: a housing 1 supporting a display 2; a first platform 1a (fixed portion) integrated into the housing 2 and supporting a first subset of a full set of raised alphabetic keys of a QWERTY keyboard; a second platform 14 (folding section) supporting a second subset of a full set of raised alphabetic keys 11 of a QWERTY keyboard, wherein said second platform 14 is connected to said first platform by a hinge 27 and is concealed from a view when in a folded position; and navigation/activation input buttons 3, which remain exposed (not concealed from a view) when said second platform 14 is in a first (closed) position. Kwon also teaches that said communication device can be used as phone, PDA, Handheld computer, messaging (E-mailing) device, etc. (paragraph [0001]).

Art Unit: 2835

Regarding to the claims 15-26: The method steps are obviously necessitated by the device structure as Kwon discloses it.

4. Claims 1-30 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Chung et al (US Patent 6,825,832).

Chung et al teach a handheld electronic communication device 10, Figs. 1-14, comprising: a housing 12 supporting a display 24; a first platform 60a (fixed portion) integrated into the housing 2 and supporting a first subset of a full set of raised alphabetic keys 58a of a QWERTY keyboard; a second platform 60b symmetrical to the first one, (folding section) supporting a second subset of a full set of raised alphabetic keys 58b of a QWERTY keyboard, wherein said second platform 60b is connected to said first platform by a hinge 70 and is concealed from a view when in a folded position; and navigation/activation input buttons 52 and 64, which remain exposed (not concealed from a view) when said second platform 60b is in a first (closed) position. Kwon also teaches that said communication device can be used as phone, PDA, Handheld computer, messaging (E-mailing) device, etc. (col. 6, lines 6-65). Regarding to the claims 15-26: The method steps are obviously necessitated by the device structure as Chung et al disclose it.
